

Civil rights activist Ivory Perry grabbed St. Louis headlines in the 1960s for his daring acts of civil disobedience, such as lying down in the street to stop traffic for the cause.

Shocked by poor housing conditions, he started a movement to confront slumlords, yet his greatest challenge was still to come.

Experience this inspiring story of a sharecropper's son, twice wounded in the Korean War, who came to lead a movement to eradicate a silent killer right in our midst.

This award-winning video features fellow activists Pearlie Evans and Percy Green, interviews by Don Fitz & narration by Kevin Johnson.

A 30 minute documentary on the life of

Ivory Perry

Pioneer in the Struggle Against Lead Poisoning

The Telly Awards

Congratulations to Rainbow Sound Producers
Kriss Avery & Jim Rothwell
Winners of the Bronze TELLY Award & BEST DOCUMENTARY at the
St. Louis Filmmaker's Showcase

To arrange an educational viewing, visit: www.rainbowsound.us