

Civil rights activist Ivory Perry grabbed St. Louis headlines in the 1960s for his daring acts of civil disobedience, such as lying down in the street to stop traffic for the cause.

Shocked by poor housing conditions, he started a movement to confront slumlords, yet his greatest challenge was still to come.

See this inspiring story of a sharecropper's son, twice wounded in the Korean War, who came to lead a movement to eradicate a silent killer right in our midst.

This award-winning show features fellow activists Pearlie Evans and Percy Green, with narration by Kevin Lawrence.
